PET PROJECT is a new breed of content producers. From development to production to post, we understand how to reach audiences in a time of merging platforms and new technology. Outside of the box? We threw the box away a long time ago.

Television, the internet, mobile devices... never in the history of entertainment have these platforms been so important in the development and monetization of content. PET PROJECT is a full service production company that understands how emerging technology and traditional media can work together. Our goal is to produce cutting-edge material for the global marketplace, the progressive Network and the intrepid viewer.

PET PROJECT is in-tune with the ever changing styles, trends and movements that exist within our complex society. We focus on the real people and real stories that shape the American landscape. Our unscripted content is young, inspired, and most of all entertaining. From TV pilots to web series', PET PROJECT is on the forefront of the changing dynamic in the entertainment industry.
